To Whom It May Concern

I would like to thank each and every person that helped me with my assignment these last few weeks. Thank you for providing me with the information that I required but also for teaching me how the IT industry actually works. It would like to thank in particular:

Mrs Hannelie Hart - Thank you for allowing me to follow you around and giving me a break down of how Columbus works, and for watching over me. Thank you for always having the time to help me, even when you were busy. I really, from the bottom of my heart, thank you. I won't soon forget the effort you made for me and the skills you showed me that I needed to survive as an adult.

Mr Jaco Lombard - Thanks for breaking down L2 so that I could actually understand how everything works, and also giving me insight into how the day to day business works.

Mrs Martie Van Staden - Thank you for showing me the integrative processes of the departments and how you would approach a project. The advice you gave on dealing with difficult situations will help when I go back to university next week.

Mr Duncan Scott - Thank you sir, for the advice on how to tackle Java related issues and for showing me the differences between the front end and back ends of Columbus.

Mrs Chantelle Taljaard - Thank you for babysitting me. At times when I didn't even know where the exits were, you were there to help. Thank you for all my documentation and for arranging all of the interviews. I am now convinced that the administrative personnel are the reason why some businesses are successful.

Mr Roelf Nel - Thank you for allowing me to see how your department works and checking in on the progress.

Mrs Linda Redelinghuys - (My Lecturer) Thank you for giving me all the tools that I need to make a success of this assignment, and for allowing me to write that sick test that pushed my IT mark to an 85%.

Mrs Bonita Barnard - (My Mother) Thanks for putting the mother in SMOTHER and for still answering the phone when I've called you six times already. I love you dearly, mom.

From the bottom of my heart I would like to thank everyone for their efforts. The knowledge you gave me will not stop when I hand in the assignment. Thank you so, so much!

Kind regards,
Alwyn Barnard
